MUSINGS from Fr. Brian

One of the pleasures for me on a Sunday morning is hearing our congregations sing.

Some of our hymns remain with me during a portion of the ensuing week. And they can become a bit infectious at times! During especially the entrance, gradual and recessional hymns, I find myself in a great surround of sound as I walk in the midst of the congregation. The hymns, along with the beautiful preludes and postludes of both of our Trinity Mineral Point and Platteville organists provide us with an offering, an outpouring of music as we come together in worship. I am impressed by the way, in both of our churches, we sit and absorb the musical offerings of the postlude before rising to leave.

Horatius Bonar has written the words to several hymns that have found their way into our hymnal including O Love of God, How Strong and True (455) and I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say (692).

The opening lines of I Heard... have always been for me a powerful invitation in the midst of life:

*I heard the voice of Jesus say,
"Come unto me and rest;
and in your weariness lay down*

your head upon my breast."

*I came to Jesus as I was,
so weary, worn, and sad;
I found in him a resting place,
and he has made me glad*

Weary, worn and sad captures some of the tumultuous places of my own living from time to time. What a gracious option Jesus presents us both in this hymn and in Jesus' own words upon which this hymn is based: Come unto me all you who labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest (Matthew 11:28).

We have this gracious option any time, but particularly whenever we come together in Sunday worship and now more recently in Compline (evening prayers) at Mineral Point on Thursdays. Compline especially has been a place of healing for me as a group of us come together, settle into the silence of the church in semi-darkness and then are drawn away from ourselves, our concerns and preoccupations into a life of prayer, contemplation, and holy quiet. These times of worship, song and prayer deepen our awareness of the world around us and sharpen our vision. And they ground us.

Jesus' invitation still stands. It always is there, before us, waiting in the midst of our multi-tasking living:

Come unto me....

Two Hundred Attend Trinity's First Film Event

Saturday, September 9th was a special day for mission and outreach for Trinity Episcopal Church of Mineral Point as two hundred attended our first Wild & Scenic Film Event at the Mineral Point Opera House. This was a church-wide project that captured our attention and involved so many of us. Approximately 24 businesses and organizations joined many individuals in supporting two hours of films dealing with the environment. Several organizations were present, drawings were held, and approximately twenty-five lingered at nearby Tequila Point to extend the evening through conversation together.

Thanks to everyone who was involved. The list is long and many acts in support of this event went on quietly behind the scenes. Special thanks to Jane Stenson, the project chair, who kept us on track! We were challenged and we responded. Caring for the environment is a spiritual issue: What is God's Spirit saying to us in all of this as we look to the future?

Please remember in prayer:
